

WORKSHOP ANNOUNCEMENT AND CALL FOR PAPERS

The Department of Agricultural Economics and Management of the Hebrew University will host an international workshop on “The Economics of Water and Agriculture” in honor of Professor Yoav Kislelev who is retiring after more than 35 years of teaching. The workshop will take place on the campus of the Faculty of Agricultural, Food and Environmental Quality Sciences in Rehovot, Israel, during December 18-20, 2002.

The program of the workshop will include both invited and selected presentations. We solicit papers in all areas of Agricultural and Resource Economics, and particularly encourage papers in one of the following themes: Water Resources and Irrigation; Research and Development; Growth and Technological Progress; Agricultural and Trade Policy; Farm Households in Developed and Developing Countries.

Should you be interested in presenting a paper at this workshop, please submit a one-page abstract by May 31, 2002 to the following address: Dr. Ayal Kimhi, Program Co-Chair, The Economics of Water and Agriculture, Department of Agricultural Economics and Management, Faculty of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12, Rehovot 76100, Israel.

We expect to have some funds available to subsidize the travel expenses of young participants. If you wish to be considered for a travel subsidy, please enclose a one-page CV and a list of publications with your submission. Graduate students and post-docs should also enclose a letter of support from their supervisor.

Further information may be obtained at the workshop’s web site:

<http://departments.agri.huji.ac.il/economics/kenes-yoav4.html>, or directly from the program co-chairs:

Dr. Israel Finkelsh (finkelsh@isdnet.net.il)

Dr. Ayal Kimhi (kimhi@agri.huji.ac.il)